ABOUT PLUMBING CONNECTION

For over 32 years Plumbing Connection has provided the market independent, well-researched technical advice, through an investment in our own researchers/editors and the support of experts columnists.

Change across the industry is constant and it is to the Plumbing professionals distinct advantage to know what is happening by way of Code updates/interpretation, how new technology works, smart ways to work onsite and how to improve the running of a plumbing business. The depth of information we publish is not found in supplier brochures or on the internet – we write our stories in easy to understand language and support them with diagrams/pictures.

We are unique in that we promote the passing down of 'tribal knowledge, the wise old-man-way of doing things that is in danger of being lost to time.

ONLINE

The www.plumbingconnection.com.au website is a valuable vehicle for communication between the print editions of Plumbing Connection, to keep the industry up to date.

E-NEWSLETTER (NIB)

The biweekly e-Newsletters are a newsfeed featuring all recent press and product releases delivered to industry inboxes in Australia and New Zealand.

INDUSTRY RELATIONSHIPS

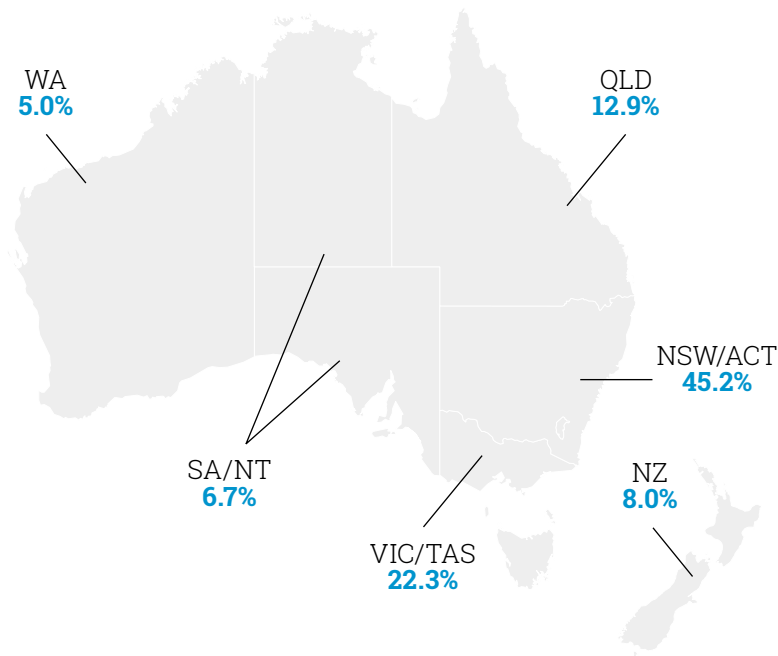

We remain independent of any industry association but work with them and their members on various stories, as appropriate.

In order to develop our story content and technical articles, we consult closely with many industry groups and their individual members. We greatly value these ongoing relationships and in turn offer these organisations access to disseminating important messages to the broader market.

MAGAZINE

Plumbing Connection maintains its position as the leading independent technical publication for the professional plumbing industry. For over 30 years, the magazine has been the primary source of technical content for the industry – developing targeted content to help industry grow, to educate the plumbing professional, and to interpret the changing regulatory and technological environment.
